In order to evaluate how good we are doing at supporting families who are having difficulties, the council shares personal information on families who qualify for the Connecting Families programme with a research institute called the Office of National Statistics (ONS). The ONS will compare progress made by families which have received our support with similar families who have not. The anonymized information they send back to us will allow us to improve our services. Full information on the National Impact Study and how your data is handled can be found in the Privacy Notice below.

If you have any further queries about the way in which we may use your data, please contact ConnectingFamilies@peterborough.gov.uk or call 01733 452291.
