The authority reserves the right to refuse your application where it is considered that the waste is not generated or of the type associated with every day living within your home.

The penalties available for offences under section 33 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 are as follows:

For a summary conviction, the maximum term of imprisonment is twelve months and the maximum available fine is £50,000

For conviction on indictment, the maximum term of imprisonment for offences concerning non-hazardous or hazardous waste is five years.
